THE MAN IN THE WOOD

*Tattered clothes, dirty and torn
Ancient boots, scuffed and worn
Hat on his head, battered and old
Hair past his shoulders, beard matted, unshorn*

*Eyes that twinkled, dark as the sky
Nut brown face, skin wrinkled and dry
A smile that was gentle, yet weary as he
A life that was different to you and me*

*He was a loner, he loved the green wood
Resting his head wherever he could
His head full of memories, happy and sad
He'd chosen this life, the good and the bad*

*Yet this is the life he lived everyday-
A true free spirit, long may he stay*
